

Each box in the diagram represents an Android Activity (a screen).

The blue arrows indicate the different connections between the screens.

The red arrows indicate that once completed (e.g., form validation), we return to the indicated screen.

By default, the native Android back button will return to the previous screen.

All activities have a home button which can be use at any time of the execution.

